

LJUBLJANA: CITY OF ADVENTURES

FEEL GREEN, ACTIVE AND HEALTHY

Situated in the heart of Europe, Slovenia is a small sized country between the Alps and the Mediterranean. With its diverse landscapes, the country is an attraction in itself. It is the first country in the world that has been, as a whole, declared a green tourist destination.

Ljubljana, Slovenia's capital, is a green city, friendly for its residents and visitors alike. Its social and environmental awareness has a long tradition that you will feel with every step. In 2016 Ljubljana received the European Green Capital Award. The cityscape, guarded by the prominent Ljubljana Castle, was shaped by the widely-celebrated architect Jože Plečnik, who also had a significant impact on the appearance of Vienna and Prague. When walking through the city don't miss Tromostovje (the Triple Bridge), the National and University Library, the monastery complex of Križanke, the colonnade of Ljubljana's central farmers' market, the Dragon Bridge, the Cobblers' Bridge, and the Robba Fountain. Whether you are a lover of culture and art or seek culinary delights, Ljubljana has something to offer that will not fail to impress. Have a walk along the Ljubljanica River, stop for a coffee and don't forget to visit the markets with fresh agricultural produce.

TRAVELLING

You can travel to Slovenia by air to Jože Plečnik International Airport. Slovenia is connected to many European cities by daily flights. Low-cost flight providers are flying from London and Brussels. Adria Airways is the Slovenian air carrier and operates most of the flights to Ljubljana. Other connections are operated by AirFrance, LOT, Finnair, Transavia, Turkish Airlines, AirSerbia. You can also fly to one of the airports in the neighbouring countries and access Slovenia from there by bus, train or rental car. The airports of Graz and Klagenfurt (Austria), Venice and Trieste (Italy) and Zagreb (Croatia) are all within easy reach.

Welcome to Ljubljana

Public health is faced with new challenges and new opportunities to improve health and wellbeing of populations in Europe. Epidemiological and demographic transitions are challenging the sustainability of future health care and the quality of life of increasing numbers of chronic patients. Although communicable diseases are better controlled these days, there is scepticism over vaccination and consequently its refusal, problems related to AMR and new pathogens.

Modern health strategies acknowledge that health care alone cannot improve health and wellbeing of today's populations. A challenge that is often mentioned is that of insufficient health literacy. This impedes the smooth implementation of many actions and interventions. Opportunities for public health exist in raising the overall level of health literacy, enabling populations at large to take better control over their own health.

Opportunities exist as well in advancing healthy public policies and making the life cycle approach a leading concept. It is becoming necessary to think beyond the traditional vulnerable groups approach and, instead, use stratifying approaches based on demographic and socio-economic characteristics of population groups.

THE PLENARY PROGRAMME IS ORGANISED BY:

- EPH Conference Foundation
- EUPHA
- National Institute of Public Health (NIJZ), Slovenia
- Slovenian Medical Society – Slovenian Preventive Medicine Society
- EuroHealthNet
- ASPHER
- European Observatory on Health Systems and Policies
- European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control
- European Commission
- WHO Regional Office for Europe

At the Ljubljana conference, we wish to point out the importance of developing partnerships at all levels and across different actors to improve the health of the population. Partnerships are especially relevant in the local community, where people live and work. It is of the utmost importance that decision makers, professionals from different sectors and nongovernmental organizations work together in establishing population wellbeing through different levels, among others through more favourable living conditions and through comprehensive health promotion, and thus jointly contribute to better health for all. Through the plenary sessions, this vision is further explored.

THEMES / PLENARY SESSIONS

- Public health: from local community's responses to addressing global health
- Sustainable Development Goals – how can we address them through public health action?
- Public Health Resources – the core of the development of public health action
- Public's awareness of public health challenges – ways of promoting public health and raising the importance of public health challenges
- Health systems under pressure

Confirmed speaker

- Prof Rifat Atun, Professor of Global Health Systems, Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health

Present your work at Ljubljana 2018

Participate at Ljubljana 2018 by sharing your work with colleagues and learn from each other. The EPH Conference offers excellent opportunities to learn from the latest research and practice, to network with experts and colleagues and to expand your professional horizons. Abstracts are invited for workshops and single presentations on all areas of public health research, practice, policy and education. Abstract submission is open from 1 February to 1 May 2018. Abstracts are considered for oral, pitch and poster presentations. Workshops are considered for 60- or 90-minutes sessions. Do not miss the opportunity to share your work in the largest international public health setting in Europe. For young and/or less experienced abstract submitters a Mentor Programme is set-up. Detailed information and instructions can be found on our website www.ephconference.eu
